Sticking to the Point.

A friend of mine, who was in business, and in need of a clerk, advertised; but out of the whole number of those who presented themselves, only one shut the door tight as he went out of the office. This one was immediately called back and employed. A little while afterward another friend, a successful lawyer, advertised as follows: "WANTED—A young man to work in an attorney's office, and also to read law at his leisure. Apply to John Smith, 13 Dunlap treet, B——."

It was the conviction of my friend that what is most desired in a lawyer is a certain cool judgment, which holds on to the main point in a given case, and allows no side issues to warp the mind from its anchored position. I have often heard him say, "in the end, the lawyer who, having hit the nail on the head, keeps driving it in until its countersunk in the conviction of both judge and jury, is the pleader who succeeds best at the bar of justice. I always select for my students such young men as have this quality, and I most invariably find it lodged in minds that are inclined to stick to the point.'

On the day following the publication of the above notice, Mr. Smith had in the forenoon a dozen applicants in person. He bade them wait his pleasure; then, when they were all seated around him, he addressed them as fol-

"Before we proceed to business, my young friends. I wish to tell you a story." Of course no one objected to this. And if it seemed a little odd in the lawyer, it was the way our beloved late President had, and there was this circumstance at least to recommend it.

"On Decon White's barn," began Mr. S., "there perched one evening an owl. The deacon was slightly superstitious, and not fancying the hooting of the lugubrious visitant, he took his gun, stole out softly, got within good range, levelled his gun at the ominous intruder, and fired. Now, the barn was old and full of chinks and holes, and it being a very dry time, the treach erous wadding immediately set fire to the hay inside, and in an instant the entire fabric was in flames. 'O, dear! dear' cried the deacon, 'how can I release all my cows and oxen and yearlings, and my sheep and horses, in season to save them? for the wind was high, and, as it always happens, it increased in freshness as the fire gained in fury.

'Help! help!' he shouted. 'Did the folks hear him in the house?' asked Alfred. (I shall call the applicants by their Christian names.) 'Not directly,' said Mr. Smith. 'The deacon lost no time in getting out the cattle. He found them frantic with terror and unmanageable. While engaged in loosing a stout young bull, the latter suddenly turned his horns and pierced him.

'I'm gored! I'm gored!' he exclaimed, in agony, just as his terror stricken wile came to the rescue.' "Did be die?"

"He was injured seriously," resumed Mr. Smith. "Feeling faint, he was obliged to go and lie down. The woman ran for a doctor.— When she returned, the pitcous bellowing of the tortured and dying cattle fell on her ears. FALL AND WINTER TRADE The thrilling thought quickly struck her, was her husband possibly in the burning ruins? Had he ventured beyond his strength again, and fallen a helpless victim? 'O, my husband! my husband!""

"Did he answer?" inquired Charley, with anxious face.

"Was he in the fire?" asked David,
"There was no reply," continued Mr. Smith, save from the wackling timbers and moans of the doomed animals. Presently she heard the voice of her only son among the flames. 'Help! help!' he cried.

The mother's heart was ready to break. She hastened to rescue her darling boy.' "Did she save him?" asked Edwin.

"O, I hope she didn't get burned herself," said Frank. "Please tell us, sir, whether they were burn ed to death," pleaded Grant.

"Well," resumed Mr. Smith, "the poor deacon died of his wound." "Too bad," said Henry. "He was a brave man,"

"And his son was badly burned.
"O, awful!" exclaimed Isaac." "And the window's clothes caught fire, but, luckily, one of the neighbors (there were none living very near) arrived at the scene of destruction just in season to extinguish the fiames.' "Good! good!" exclaimed James. He threw the buffalo in the wagon over her, I suppose?'

"You are right,,' said Mr. Smith. "And he released one of the best horses." "Was he burned at all?" asked Karl.
"Only a little scorched," said Mr. Smith.

And so the narrator went on until he had de picted the consequence in detail of the sad event. Then he paused. His audience were silent. Their sympathies had been deeply touched. Each one seemed silently pittying the poor, afflicted family. But one boy sat un moved through tha whole story, and said nothing. And now that the parrative was finished, and a pause had come, he deliberately looked intoMr. Smith's face in a straightforward manner, and asked: "Did he hit the owl?"

This was the youth that struck to the point, and the one that the lawyer selected from the twelve. The story had simply been mr.nulac-

Especially, who have become the Victims of Solitary Vice, and dreadful and destructive habits which annually sweep to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to estacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

MARRIAGE. Married persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, aware of Physical Weakness (Less of Procreative Power—Impotency,) Nervous Excitability, Palpitation, Organic Weakness, Nervous Debility, or any other Disqualification, speedily relieved.

He who places himself under the care of Dr J. may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a physician. ORGANIC WEAKNESS. Immodiately cured and Full Vigor Restored.
This distressing Affection—which renders life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgencies. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dread-mit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the natural powers are lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious

Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either busines, study, society or marriage. These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by the early habits of youth, viz: Weaknese of the Back and Limbs, Pains MENTALLY.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded. Loss of memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Forebodings, Aversion to Society, Self Distrust, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.

Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health, losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of Consumption.

Who have injured themselves by a certain practice, already described, a habit frequently learned from evil companions or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, school, the effects of which are highly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured, repders marriage impossible, and destroys both nind and body, should apply immediately.
